

Earth Day at Cedar Bog

April 21, 2007

We celebrated another Earth Day at the bog on April 21, 2007. The day started with a Bird Walk at 10:00am. About a dozen people enjoyed the walk. Doug Overacker of Springfield led the walk.

By the end of the day the bog had 130 visitors including students from Ohio State University who spent the day keying plants and students from Wittenberg. It was an incredible day with blue skies and people celebrating nature at Cedar Bog.

Volunteers provided wildflower walks throughout the day. This is what everyone saw.

It was the last weekend for the Marsh Marigolds in the Swamp Woods.
